

Pet Peace of Mind

Keeping Pets & People Together
Through Life's Transitions

Pets are family.

Pets offer unconditional love, acceptance, comfort, and companionship at a time when it's needed most. Protecting the bond and nurturing the relationship between people and their pets are important gifts to someone struggling with a serious illness.

PRESERVING THE BOND BETWEEN PATIENTS AND THEIR PETS

How does Pet Peace of Mind help?

Pet Peace of Mind is a national program that enables hospice patients to keep their pets at home throughout their end-of-life journey. The program works through local hospice partners to provide volunteer services at no cost to patients. Pet Peace of Mind volunteers are specially trained to provide in-home pet care assistance when the patient needs help caring for a pet and to help orphaned pets find a loving new home when necessary. With this kind and compassionate support, patients no longer have to worry about their pet's current or future needs.

"I'm glad I can help provide that added peace of mind that their animal will continue to be loved and well taken care of." Laurie, Volunteer
